On the Lighter Side

• Mrs. Trent, seated in her living room, heard the back door slam. Thinking it was her young son, she called: "I'm in here, darling. I've been waiting for you." There was no answer for a moment. Then a strange voice faltered: "I'm sorry, but I ain't your regular milk deliverer."

• Two lawyers were arguing a case in court and began to call each other names. "You're a loop-brained shyster," roared one. "And you're an ambulance-chasing cockroach," roared the other. The judge finally rapped for order. "Now that you two have introduced each other to this court," he said, "you may proceed with the case."

• A golfer, trying to get out of a trap, said to her competitor: "The traps on this course are very annoying, aren't they?" The second golfer, trying to putt replied, "They are, indeed, so would you please close yours?"

• There is little chance for people to get together as long as most of us want to be in the front of the bus, the back of the church, and the middle of the road.

• Zoo visitors were amazed to see a cage, labeled "Coexistence," containing a lion and some lambs. The zoo director explained there was nothing to it. "Just add a few fresh lambs every now and then."
